ONE-OF-A-KIND HOMES INSPRIED BY OUR CLIENTS' LIVES

STONEWATER ARCHITECTURE

CREATING ONE-OF-A-KIND HOMES INSPIRED BY OUR CLIENTS' LIVES

Founded in 2008, Stonewater has been designing homes for the past 20 years. And, they continue what they do best: listening to their clients and taking action. We have worked in the Westfield area for a number of years, and after thoughtful consideration, we will be opening a new office in downtown Westfield this Summer.

"The story of why we're opening these new offices begins the same way that we design our clients' homes. We listen. Every house has a story, and our clients' lives inspire that story, not the building materials, the staircase or even the design," says Michael A. Moritz, principal at Stonewater Architecture. "Our clients are thrilled that we will be right here in their backyards with easy, creative offices to meet - and listen - and dream - and design. Once we started sharing our news with our clients, it all just seemed to make sense and solidified our plan and made me ask myself why hadn't we done this sooner?" laughs Michael.

Stonewater Architecture believes that each house tells a story and that each story can only be told through the relationships they have with their clients. In order to design homes that help his clients lead better lives from that first cup of coffee through the end of the day, Michael commits to never repeating a floor plan. Never! What he does do is bring a fresh, modern take on traditional styled homes by creating homes for the modern lifestyle. "It's not always what most people think of as modern homes," emphasizes Michael, "we create unique designs that might be visually, physically, or emotionally modern."

"We promise to design and build a one-of-a-kind, beautiful, often show-stopping home," says Michael. "But we also promise it will reflect you, your lifestyle, and the way you want to live."

CLASSIC, TIMELESS, AND INFLUENTIAL DESIGN

From the exterior designs to the custom millwork, jaw-dropping entryways, and signature staircases, Stonewater is often the architect and the builder. This enables them to be a part of every detail, often working with the interior designer, tradesmen, and vendors. Stonewater designs spaces that create emotion whether you are entering a space, entertaining, or relaxing. From embracing the lighting to using the perfect materials, these fine details come together to form a beautiful canvas for living as one has always imagined.

Stonewater was highly recommended to us from a local designer. Michael has a unique style, and really grasped what we wanted. Somehow, he understood our need for a "traditional, yet not traditional, dream home." He just gets it - and he listens. And, for such a talented architect, he doesn't have a huge ego! Our friends and family always comment on the feeling they get when they enter our home, which we love! They like the openness and the breathtaking views of our backyard, which is exactly the feeling that we wanted in our home. They also comment on the abundance of layered details that are unique, yet warm and inviting. The design of our home has such a welcoming, yet open, airy feel that our guests never want to leave! Happy Clients, Westfield

Stonewater prides itself on the soul of their design. Their spaces make emotional connections with both clients, their families, and their guests. "We design and build on a foundation of mutual trust," says Michael. "Thoughtfulness, attention to detail, creativity, and trust are what we hope to bring to every relationship and every project. It's our starting point and our ending point - in all of our clients' homes."
